Cultural Intelligence: Why are cultures different? The professor explains.

Feb 19- National Gallery: 17th century was the golden age for French painting. Learn more about Poussin and Claude (who actually were busy painting in Rome.)

Feb 26- National Gallery: More artists we've heard of. Today it is Rubens and Van Dyke.

Cultural Intelligence: We examine the Nordic Clusters-Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland and Iceland. You'll learn about Jante's law- "Don't think you're anything special." (or as they say in the upper Midwest: Don't get the big head.) Are we ready for this?

WALLIS SIMPSON - ROYAL OBSESSION

THE LOVE SCANDAL THAT ROCKED THE EMPIRE

"That Woman," as Queen Mary called Wallis, was the most infamous woman of her time. Just mention her name at a party and you've stirred up a hotbed of interest. Everyone has an opinion. What magical hold did Wallis have on Edward VIII that he abdicated the throne of England to marry her? Did she even want to be Queen? And why did the royals at Buckingham Palace despise her so?

Through extensive research, Wallis' actual letters to her aunt in America, and those recently discovered from her second husband, Ernest Simpson, Joanna Olsen invites you to enter the world of post-World War I London. This intriguing one-woman show about an ambitious Baltimore socialite who ultimately became the Duchess of Windsor will captivate and delight, and may change your opinion.

Joanna Olsen is a professional actor who has performed major roles throughout the South and Midwest.
